

I have provided you with some revision notes put together by two very talented students from my 2010 lectures. I have edited these to bring into line with the sequence and content of lecture this year. I will try to get you the corresponding notes for the last two lectures by Weds pm. I hope these prove useful as background for your study.

BUT – you should revise primarily from your own notes and the images I provided.

Only material covered in lectures by me (up to and including Weds March 30) will be included on the Evolution mid-term (exam on Friday April 1). The textbook and these review notes are intended as background only.

I have also provided some examples of multiple choice questions on Evolution so that you have some idea of the types of questions I write.
